

Jennifer O’Kane Andriana Hambi 10X

Journey of a raindrop

As Mr Cloud watched over the world, he wondered, “When did it all go so wrong? Detention, no residential trips, no mixed play ground”, as he thought these thoughts a great sadness overwhelmed him and he shed a single tear. The tear fell and fell until it landed on an unsuspecting teacher at a girls grammar school. It said, “Excuse me sir but why do you give so much homework to poor year 10 students?”

“Well Mr raindrop it is because I am mean and I like giving lots of homework to year 10 students!”

The raindrop realises he is going to find no solution for the problems here and travels on. Next he lands on a woman and said,

“Excuse me miss but why do you make poor year 10 students go outside in the cold?”

“Look Mr rain drop, Library or outside”

The raindrop realises he is going to find no solution for the problems here and travels on. Next he lands on a kind head teacher,

“Excuse me miss but why do some pupils complain so much about this school”

“Well Mr raindrop it is because they love it so, you love what you hate and you hate what you love, I think you will find that this school is perfect in everyway”

“Oh well that’s fine then we must have got the wrong the end of the stick from the sky”,

The raindrop then flew away from the school and the evil head teacher had fooled yet another saviour.