

An armchair introduction to A-Level geography: Week 2

This week is about giving your eyes a rest and allowing your ears to do the work instead!

Podcasts are brilliant and there are usually free. Have a browse at the range of podcasts available through the Royal Geographical Society and listen to anything that appeals to you:

<https://www.rgs.org/schools/teaching-resources/ask-the-expert-podcasts/>

Below is a direct link to the podcast available on the Royal Geographical Society website that features Tim Marshall. He is a geopolitical journalist who has become a household name in recent years. Geographers are brilliant at seeing the bigger picture. Tim Marshall's work demonstrates how geography impacts the lives of people and affects decisions by governments around the world.

<https://www.rgs.org/schools/teaching-resources/a-conversation-with-tim-marshall/>

If you would like to access his best-selling book 'Prisoners of Geography', it is currently available for free in audio form on Amazon:

<https://www.amazon.co.uk/Prisoners-Geography-Everything-Global-Politics-ebook/dp/BooY16BEM2>

And finally if you want to look as well as listen:

1. Here's his blog:

<http://www.thewhatandthewhy.com/>

2. Here he is introducing us to the adapted version of his book for children:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=qiVOhCCJrGI>

3. Here he is being interviewed on BBC Newsnight:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=6ohFeFXV4mY>

